

Thin Blue Line Cruise 2019

Saturday October 12, 2019

Friday October 17, 2019

Thin Blue Line Cruise 2020 sets sail from the Port of Tampa at 4 PM Saturday October 12, 2019 for a 5-day cruise aboard Royal Caribbean's Mariner of the Seas. Once we are out to sea the casino opens! So, enjoy the evening! Sunday we will arrive at Key West Florida at approximately 12 PM and will be docked there until 6 PM. This beautiful port holds lots of surprises, fun in the sea and places to explore. Once you are back onboard, have a fantastic meal in the main dining room, or grab a pizza and a beer and just watch the sunset.

Monday is the big day,,Havana Cuba! Go ashore for a once in a lifetime visit to this country. Tuesday, we sail into Cozumel Mexico around 12 PM and stay in port until 10 PM. This place is amazing! From the scenic drive around the island to tequila making! Enjoy being ashore. But do take care to come aboard on time. Time to relax and unwind! Wednesday we will be cruising all day. This is our seminar day! We will have fun events going on all day for you to enjoy! And finally, this night is our last night at sea. Grab a drink and just watch the ocean float by. Sadly, we arrive back at Port of Tampa at 8 AM Thursday morning.

The new Mariner of the Seas® is loaded with surprises to thrill even the boldest weekend warriors. Launch yourself into a virtual world on a new bungee trampoline experience — Sky PadSM. Hang ten on the newly added FlowRider® surf simulator or race down The Perfect StormSM waterslides. And go head-to-head in a glow-in-the-dark laser tag clash in Battle for Planet ZSM.

Ports of Call

Historic Landmark.

Key West, a U.S. island city, is part of the Florida Keys archipelago. It's also Florida's southernmost point, lying roughly 90 miles north of Cuba. Famed for its pastel-hued, conch-style houses, it's a cruise-ship stop also accessible from the mainland via the Overseas Highway. It's known more for its coral reefs – destinations for diving and snorkeling – than for its beaches.

The Ernest Hemingway House was the residence of author Ernest Hemingway in Key West, Florida, United States. It is at 907 Whitehead Street, across from the Key West lighthouse, close to the southern coast of the island. On November 24, 1968, it was designated a U.S. National Havana, originally founded in southern Cuba in 1514, the town of Havana was moved to its current location next to what was called Puerto de Carenas (“Careening Bay”) in 1519. Properly known as San Cristobal de la Habana, the city thrived as a trading port thanks to this natural bay.

In 2019, Havana will celebrate 500 years on the map, so it’s a great time to look back over the city’s storied history. For centuries, Cuba has been a center of cultural influence in the Americas. Known as “the Key to the New World,” the island served as a crossroads for explorers, buccaneers, colonial powers (Spain and Britain), indigenous people, entertainers, and exiles.

Many people, both past, and present have come to Havana because of the city’s distinctive pizzazz. It’s got prime coastal real estate. Over the centuries, it’s been a hub of political activity, of lawlessness, and of hospitality. A stay there promises experiences intrinsically unlike any other place in the world.

Now, the city (and Cuba itself) is once again immersed in transition. The U.S. embargo teeters. Cuba is without a Castro in power for the first time in over half a century. At 500 years old, Havana has the promise of change on the horizon. But, that doesn’t mean visitors shouldn’t appreciate what’s already there now.

No matter what happens, there’s no doubt Havana will continue to provide a tremendous experience for visitors.
